

CLARKS FOUND GUILTY OF BATTERY

TWO WELL KNOWN ATTORNEYS TO BE SENTENCED TODAY FOR BEATING C. H. BOLMAN

(From Thursday's Daily.)

Before a jury of six Prescott citizens, at a trial held before Judge McLane in the superior court room yesterday afternoon, Elias S. Clark and his son, Neill Clark, lawyers of this city were found guilty of battery on the person of Charles H. Bolman, a plasterer, and this forenoon at ten o'clock today they will be sentenced.

The jury which heard the case was as follows: H. Jones, C. C. Baker, L. Maxwell, W. M. Kelly, P. B. Dreiser and M. T. Broadhead.

Bolman Beaten Up.
This trial which for a number of days has caused a great deal of comment about the city owing to the extraordinary features connected with it, was of short duration, and the jury deliberated less than half an hour.

Mr. Clark and son appeared as their own counsel and Assistant County Attorney Morgan prosecuted the case, it being the latter who asked for a jury. But three witnesses, aside from the principals, gave testimony, and they all agreed that E. S. Clark struck the defendant first, and that afterward there was a shoving and mixing up in what was quite a lively and exciting scrap, Bolman being scratched and bruised considerably about the face, and it being necessary for two carpenters working nearby to pull the two Clarks off Bolman while they were in the act of beating him up, the latter being down on the ground at the rear of the new high school building where he was mixing mortar at the time the row took place. E. S. Clark himself admitted that he struck Bolman first, as also did his son, so there was no controversy on this point. In fact the story of all the witnesses was so corroborative that not a cross-examination question was asked by either side.

Bolman's Story.
Bolman said he was at his work at the new school house when the two Clarks came there together. They asked Bolman if he had made certain statements. He said he told them that he had said they deliberately threw him down in the suit he recently had with the Arizona Mine Supply Company, that they agreed to refund the money he had paid them if they did not win the case, and after he had lost he refused to do so. After he had said this, Bolman swore that E. S. Clark said: "You will retract the statements you have made or I will do you up." He said that Clark struck him in the face as he made the threat and that Neill Clark picked up a hoe. "Then," he asserted, "I grabbed a shovel and struck at E. S. Clark, hitting him on the arm, backing off all the time until I fell over the mortar box or something else, when they both jumped on me, the old man holding me while Neill beat me up." He insisted that Neill picked up the hoe and E. S. Clark struck him before he picked up the shovel. Half an hour after the two men had left he said Neill returned, and "I thought he had come back to finish it and started after him again with the shovel."

There was no cross examination.

Men Who Stopped It Testify.
At this point Geo. Gohm and C. H. Stocking, the two carpenters, who pulled the Clarks off Bolman, told of the part they took, each stating that the older Clark was holding Bolman on the ground while the son was beating him. They also agreed that E. S. Clark struck the first blow. Neither, however, heard any of the conversation between the combatants.

E. S. Clark's Evidence.
E. S. Clark, who had been on his left forearm as he testified of what he alleged to be done by the shovel in the hands of Bolman, told about the following story:

"The evidence of Mr. Stocking is about all there is to the fuss. The trouble arose out of a lawsuit in which I was attorney for Mr. Bolman against the Arizona Mine Supply Company. We won that suit in the superior court, and the decision was reversed in the supreme court. I tried to get a re-hearing and could not do so, but did everything that could be done. It was a bitterly contested lawsuit and took a great deal of time and trouble. The final result of the trial was that a judgment stood against Mr. Bolman. Mr. Bolman came to our office a number of times and used language which was very embarrassing, useless and unjust. Recently I heard that he was making the statement that I had thrown him down in the suit and that I had sent a bill to C. T. Joslin, president of the Arizona Mine Supply Company for $600. This was untrue and about the report. I had no intention of having any trouble with him, but I did want him to stop circulating such a report. He reiterated the statement and I lost my temper and struck at him, hitting him on the forearm. All was then over so far as I was concerned, but he grabbed a shovel and struck at Neill with the sharp edge down, hitting Neill with the flat part of the weapon on the head, a glancing blow. He started to strike again when I grabbed for the shovel."

and caught the blow on my arm inflicting a gash which laid the flesh open to the bone, which was sewed up by Dr. Yount. I then was mad and went after him. I struck him two or three times. No one had to pull me off him. I was glad when it was all over."

No cross examination.

Corroborates His Father.
The evidence of Neill Clark corroborated that of his father. He said he went over there to prevent trouble; that he did not want to see his father have trouble and that Bolman had been so friendly to him personally that he did not think he would attack him. He declared that Bolman aimed the blow with the shovel at him and struck him on the head, and that when he struck a second time and hit his father he became excited and really did not know what took place for a few moments. "I did jump on Bolman, though, and punished him to the best of my ability," he said, "after he grabbed the shovel." He said he only picked up the hoe in self-defense.

Joslin Testifies.
Charles T. Joslin, president of the Arizona Mine Supply Company testified that Mr. Clark never did send him a bill for $600 or any other amount; that the attorneys of his company in the suit referred to were Norris & Mitchell and that he paid them. He went further, however, to explain a conversation he had had with Bolman in which he stated that the case cost his company $600, but said he did not mention the name of Mr. Clark in that talk.

Attorney Morgan read the law on battery to the jury and insisted that the Clarks were guilty of the crime charged. He said that the county attorney's office had been accused of not enforcing the law, but that they had brought cases and insisted on conviction wherever criminal charges had been filed, and that in this case he believed the law should be enforced.

Mr. E. S. Clark said he had nothing to say to the jury.

One More Case.
This morning after Judge McLane shall have passed sentence on the battery charge, Neill Clark will be arraigned on the charge of carrying concealed weapons, an information of this character having been sworn out by Bolman at the same time the battery charges were made. The information alleges that the young attorney flourished a revolver in the face of Bolman the same day of the fuss at the school house.

A number of people heard the trial yesterday.

JUDGE FINES THE CLARKS $50 EACH
(From Friday's Daily.)
Elias S. Clark and son, Neill

Clark, were fined fifty dollars each yesterday morning by Judge McLane to pay the penalty for battery, a crime of which they were convicted Wednesday after a trial before a jury, particulars of which are already familiar to the Prescott public.

The two men were accused by Charles H. Bolman, who at the same time filed an information against Neill Clark accusing him of carrying concealed weapons, alleging that he went back to the new high school building after the fight in which himself, Neill Clark and his father had been engaged, and flourishing a revolver in a threatening manner. Assistant County Attorney Morgan, who prosecuted the battery charge and had the concealed weapons warrant issued, said yesterday that it was not probable that the last named charge would be pushed, as it was not probable that Neill Clark had carried concealed weapons.

SPARTAN NATURE REVEALED BY INCIDENT
PETROGRAD, Oct. 28.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The Russian journal Svet, tells the following story of the Spartan conduct of Colonel Lopoukhine. He was listening, after the first great battle in Galicia to the reading of the report of his regiment's casualties:

"We have lost 200 killed and wounded," he was told.

"How many soldiers killed?" demanded Colonel Lopoukhine.

"So many—"

"How many officers killed?"

"Only one."

"What is the name of this officer?"

"Lieutenant Lopoukhine."

"Not a muscle of Col. Lopoukhine's face moved."

"Where was the officer killed?" he asked.

"The place was indicated. He went to the body of his dead son, dismounted from his horse, kissed the forehead and lips of the child, made the sign of the cross, remounted and continued giving orders."

WELSH WINS.
BOSTON, Oct. 28.—Freddie Welsh the lightweight champion of the world won the decision over Mattie Baldwin of Charleston in a twelve-round battle before a large audience last night.
